Overview

Jamie joined Sher Edling in 2025, after graduating from NYU School of Law. While at NYU, she was Co-Chair of the Environmental Law Society, Notes Editor for the NYU Law Review, Online Editor for the NYU Environmental Law Journal, and a Student Advocate with the Reproductive Justice Clinic. Jamie spent her summers at the California Attorney General in the Land Use & Conservation section and with Sher Edling. Prior to law school, Jamie was a legal assistant with United Community Housing Coalition, an organization representing tenants facing eviction. She received her B.A. from Brown University in international relations. Jamie loves reading, baking, hiking, and long walks with her dog.
